Beryllium Is Called Key To Moon Rocket

SUNNYVALE, Calif. — Beryllium will be the key to a rocket trip to the moon, a Lockheed Missile engineer says.

L. A. Rieinger, aeronautical strength engineer on the Polaris project, says that beryllium could reduce the weight of a million-pound rocket by one-fifth.

If the strong lightweight metal were used only in the 10,000-pound third stage, the overall weight saving at launching would "grow" to 200,000 pounds.

He explained that the 400-pound lightweight third stage rocket would save 22,000 pounds of fuel in the third stage.

and 220,000 pounds of fuel in the whole rocket.

UP Is Now United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United Press Associations and International News Service joined forces Saturday around the world in the creation of a single news agency named "United Press International."

This is the first dispatch of the new service which will embrace the largest number of newspaper and radio clients ever served simultaneously by an independently operated news and picture agency.

Agreements covering the consolidation of services were signed by both sides on May 16, and the announcement was delayed until the physical changeover could be worked out.

Frank H. Bartholomew, of United Press, will be president of the new global agency, and Kingsbury Smith, of International News Service, will be vice president and associate general manager.

The board will be enlarged by the addition of William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst Newspapers; J. D.
Gortalsky, chairman of the board of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc.; and G. O.
Markson, vice president and treasurer of the Hearst corporation.

Frank Bartholomew, president of United Press International, stated that:
"The consolidation of the two services will assure a stronger competitive news and pictorial-news report to newspapers, radio and television stations throughout the entire civilized world."

"Like the newspapers depending upon us for news, our will be a business organization, collecting and distributing one of the world's most perishable products, NEWS. We believe private enterprise with a profit incentive is the best guaranty of objective coverage of world news, exactly as it is for the subsequent publishing of that news in the great independent newspapers of the world."

"The combining of the two services will guarantee broader and more efficient news and pictorial reporting on a worldwide basis."

Carl Erskine Is Not Washed Up Philadelphia Phils Can Testify

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

All that talk about Carl Erskine being washed up turns out to be just a lot of soap suds.

Don't try to tell that latter to the Philadelphia Phillies, who managed to get only two singles off him Monday night when he pitched the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 2-1 victory.

Erskine, who held the Phils hitless until the sixth inning, had a little extra incentive because he knew his hospitalized old battery-mate, Roy Campanella, was watching him on television.

"It would sound too corny if I said I won it for Campy,"

Campanella Is Offered Ring Job

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy Campanella, "overwhelmed" by an offer to serve as a deputy state boxing commissioner, started training for his new job Monday.

The former Los Angeles Dodgers' catcher was allowed to sit up in a wheelchair for the first time since he suffered partial paralysis in an auto accident last Jan. 28.

Gov. Averill Harriman visited Campanella Sunday at the Institute for Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the YNU-Bellevue Medical Center and offered Campanella the deputy commissioner's job.

Harriman reported the 36-year-old, former catcher "was overwhelmed" by the job offer and replied, "I would very much like to take it."

Doctors at the institute said the job "would be great" for Campanella's rehabilitation, but gave no indication when he would be able to assume his new duties.

The chief responsibilities of deputy commissioners involve the supervision of professional fights at various clubs in the state. They make between $7,000 and $8,000 a year.

United Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The man-in-the-street indicated today he was offended by National League president Warren Giles' statement that the Dodgers may be forced to leave Los Angeles if the Chavez Ravine referendum is defeated.

But a United Press random poll of 22 people on the effects of Giles' remarks showed only two decided to change their votes because of the league president's statement.

Of the 22 people questioned, 12 said they would still vote in favor of upholding the Chavez Ravine stadium site contract, six said they were voting against the referendum — two because of Giles' remarks — and four were undecided.

Many of those polled felt Giles was "bluffing" when he threatened to have the league lift the Dodgers franchise from Los Angeles if the referendum failed.

Trying To Pressure

"If he pulls them out he's crazy," said Vernon Nellis, a jewelry store salesman. "He's getting a lot of money for the club here. And if he doesn't stay here, where will he go? Giles is pulling a publicity stunt."

Russ Teller, a restaurant owner, said, "I wasn't sure before. Now I'll vote against it."

Mail carrier Keren Pierce added, "Giles is trying to pressure the people. He wouldn't pull them out. I'll vote yes."

Shoe salesman Irvin Lebowitz commented, "They're trying to put on the heat. I think they'll lose more votes than they'll get from this stunt. But I'm voting yes on the contract."

Giles' statement has lost the Dodgers 12,000 votes on Chavez Ravine. He shouldn't stick his head into it," added Melvin Main, a carpenter contractor who said he still would vote yes on the referendum.

Gave Them Best Deal

But Dave Nelman, a food salesman, said, "Giles is an idiot. We gave the club the best deal ever with all the concessions and he comes back like this. This changes my vote from yes to no."

Barber Umberto Castro commented, "He's preying the people, but I don't think he'll pull the Dodgers out." Castro said he was undecided.

Coast Guardsman Ed Wurd contended the Dodgers had no right to Chavez Ravine and he said, "It's a business windle."

Voice teacher Alexander Hoepf would only say, "Giles is bluffing. I'm still voting yes."

Giles' statement was a dictator-like edict," said cook Fred Bryan, "I'd like to see them move out. It would bring back the Hollywood baseball club."

Service station owner Mike Anello added, "I'd like to see them stay; they're doing the city a lot of good. Everyone is enthused. Giles is nuts." Parking lot owner John Simon took the opposing view when he said, "The Dodgers are destroying other Los Angeles business."

said Erskine, who visited him Sunday night, "but I knew he was watching and I know the kick he gets whenever we win. Believe me, he's really struggling with us. When I was over to see him, he kept asking me over and over again, 'What's wrong with us?'"

Roberts Loses Fifth

There wasn't a thing wrong with the Dodgers Monday night as they hung Robin Roberts' fifth defeat of the season on him. They scored both of their runs in the fourth inning when Gil Hodges walked with two out, Gino Cimoli singled and little Don Zimmer scored them both with a line double off the left-field wall.

The victory was Erskine's third of the season and it looked all the more impressive coming off a 4-0 triumph he registered over the Cardinals in his last previous start on May 18.

The Milwaukee Braves moved to within two games of first place with a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs in the only other National League game scheduled.

Eddie Mathews' 11th home run of the season in the eighth inning off Moe Drabowsky settled matters after the Cubs batted back to tie the score with a three-run rally in the sixth.

Few Offended By Remarks Of Giles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The man-in-the-street indicated today he was offended by National League president Warren Giles' statement that the Dodgers may be forced to leave Los Angeles if the Chavez Ravine referendum is defeated.

a three-run jump when he homered with two on in the fourth but the Cubs drove starter Lew Burdette to cover with their three-run burst in the sixth. Fast-baller Don McMahon then took over, checked Chicago on one hit the rest of the way and earned his third victory in eight days.

Murray Dickson, 42-year-old Kansas City knicker-baller, won his own ball game with a 10th inning homer over the left field wall that beat Baltimore, 5-4.

Dickson's homer was only the third one he hit in his 17-year major league career and it capped a relief stint of 6 1/2 innings during which he yielded only four hits to register his third victory of the campaign.

Jim Busby put Baltimore in front with a fourth-inning grand slam homer off KC starter Ralph Terry. The A's got three of those runs back in the bottom of the fourth off Connie Johnson on Bob Martyn's two-run homer, an error and a pair of infield outs, then tied the score on Harry Chitt's homer in the fifth.

Arnie Portocarrero relieved Johnson at that point and held the A's to two hits until Dickson hits his first pitch in the 10th barely over the left field barrier.

It was the only American League game scheduled.

SPORT PARADE

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves still have to be the favorite to win the National League flag but the time has come today to take those surprising San Francisco Giants seriously.

Two weeks ago you could still have doubted the Giants. They had fattened themselves by winning eight of 10 from the decredit Dodgers, whose veterans finally have started careening down the other side of the hill.

But during the interim the Giants have won nine of 13 games thanks to four young men and a boy who, it begins to seem fairly certain, aren't going to fold as expected.

The Giants had the crux of a winning ball club in Willie Mays, Ruben Gomez and Johnny Antonelli. They simply weren't enough to carry the club to the jackpot. Mays is having another fine year, just as he did last season when the club finished sixth. Antonelli won 20 games in 1956, when, again the team wound up sixth.

The supporting cast simply wasn't there.

Giles Rookies

Which brings us to the quartet of rookies which has made the team-jell: Namely first baseman Orlando Cepeda, catcher Bob Schmidt, right fielder William (Boom Boom) Kirlend and third baseman Jim Davenport. Throw in 19-year-old pitcher Mike McCormick and we have the answer to a ball club which obviously, as of now, isn't going to pull an old fold.

The 20-year old Cepeda so far has done everything right to spark the infield and Davenport is a superior glove man. The 23-year old Schmidt has closed a catching gap and the 24-year old Kirlend is doing a solid job.

McCormick has been another surprise. A $60,000 bonus baby when signed in August of 1956, in two years he won three games. Pitching with remarkable poise, he has won four games in the last three weeks.

New Challengers

In re-evaluating the National League, you still have to hand the overall award to the Braves, but there has become obvious that there are new challengers. The Cardinals, Redlegs and Dodgers are going back. It is the Giants and, surprisingly enough, the Pirates, who are coming on as the teams of the future.

Pittsburgh has a sound club.

Whatever Happened To HANK BOROWY

By United Press International
Hank Borowy, a right-handed pitcher, came up to the Yankees in 1942 and enjoyed considerable success through the war years. Then in 1945, after piling up a 10-5 record for New York, he suddenly was sold in mid-season to the Chicago Cubs in a $100,000 deal that helped put the Cubs in the World Series that fall. After moving to Chicago, Hank won 11 more games and lost only two. Borowy never again approached that 25 showing of 21-7 and finally ran out his career with a 2-2 record for Detroit in 1951.

Whatever happened to Hank Borowy? Now 42, Hank is in the real estate business in his native Bloomfield, N.J. He still keeps an active interest in baseball and late last season served briefly as a batting practice pitcher for the Yanks.

Crowned At Prom

Miss Pat Beale was crowned queen of the junior class Saturday evening in a special ceremony at the dinner dance given by the junior class of Murray High School honoring the seniors. The event was in the Kenlake Hotel. Ted Sykes, president, made the presentation of roses when he announced the queen and escorted her to the throne.

Miss Dianne Elkins, queen of her class last year and senior, presented the crown to Miss Beale. Miss Beale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Beale. Miss Elkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Elkins. Annually the juniors secretly vote for their choice to be named queen. The election results is kept secret until the junior-senior party. The party was in a setting of moonlight and roses with a background of midnight blue touched with hundreds of silver stars. A smiling moon was in the scene. Red roses in clusters and streamers decorated the banquet tables. Souvenir programs were used as favors.

The program during the dinner hour included the invocation by W. B. Moser, supervisor of the school; a welcome by president Ted Sykes; the response by Dan Roberts, president of the senior class; and a "Goodbye to the Seniors" by Principal Fred Schultz.

Group music, led by Miss Elkins, followed the banquet. The dances opened with a grand march and ended at 11:30.

Hostess At Party
For Beverly Stout

Miss Beverly Stout, bride-elect of Marshall Garland and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stout, was honored recently with a bridge shower given by Mrs. Verne Kyle in her home at 7:30 in the evening.

For the party, Miss Stout chose a white lace over red tulle affair with dyed-to-match pumps. Her orange was pink rose buds.

The hostess presented the honoree with an electric mixer. Other gifts, arranged surrounding the fireplace, were opened by Miss Stout and displayed. Games were played and prizes won by Miss Sally Jones, Frances Gibson and Mrs. Jimmy Doran.

The color scheme was pink and green. Refreshments of strawberry punch and individual white and pink cakes were served from a table overlaid with a mini green cloth. A large arrangement of roses centered the table.

Salesmen Learn Use Of Devices

PITTSBURGH — A safety engineering firm has a unique training program for its salesmen whereby they must actually wear and use the equipment.

The Safety Appliances Co., world's largest commercial manufacturer of safety equipment, conducts a school for "salesmen of safety." Courses are designed for training field sales engineers.

The company said MSA salesmen spend more time learning safety techniques than they do studying "salesmanship." One of the first assignments is to learn methods of manual artificial respiration — without using safety equipment.

"Our safety salesmen must be highly trained in all safety techniques and familiar with most every safety problem encountered in industry today," says L. J. Bowker, director of sales training.

The trainees actually wear and use MSA items such as gas masks which they test in a special room. The firm admits that it's a tough course for even highly qualified trainees.

Practical Application
Bowker recalled when one of his safety salesmen was attending a friend's wedding in Buffalo, N. Y. The minister suffered a heart attack.

The salesman, dashed out to his car, brought in an automatic artificial respiration device and gave oxygen to the minister. This possibly saved his life.

In McMinnville, Tenn., a salesman was demonstrating a mask used where smoke is heavy. Just then a fire alarm sounded. The salesman joined firemen and sped to the scene. Wearing the MSA mask he was able to advance close to the flames and help extinguish them. The firemen were impressed.

"Certainly it is not unusual for a salesman to be well-versed in his company's sales items," Bowker said. "But we want our salesmen to know something more — we want them to understand, appreciate, promote and sell the very idea of safety. That's why Mine Safety Appliances Company was founded."

TOMMY STEELE MOBBED

DUNDEE, Scotland — Rock 'n' roll singer Tommy Steele, 21, was injured after being knocked unconscious by a screaming mob of girls welcoming him back from a Scandinavian tour. New Compression Method Creates Fresh Water

CHICAGO — A fresh water from salt water continues to be an important research goal, the Armour Research Foundation reports.

It revealed the U. S. Navy has announced a mechanical compression method for doing the job, using ice made from brine.

Fresh water ice crystals then are separated from brine ice by a compression method after single stage of freezing, the foundation said.

Armour said the Navy disclosed that a relatively simple production unit could do the de-salting.

Living Christmas Tree Campaign Is Now On

SAN FRANCISCO — The California Association of Nurserymen urges you to look forward to next Christmas—and buy a "living" Christmas tree. The conception of such a tree, the nurserymen said, is taking hold. The idea is to either buy a slow-growing or dwarf, conifer or to buy a tree that can be transplanted into a private yard.

A dwarf tree will thrive in a container and can be brought indoors during the holiday season and decorated. Other home gardeners pick a conifer for its use as an outdoor Christmas tree, using it inside only the first year.

Spend Money To Find Right Job

CHICAGO — You've got to spend money in order to land the right job, says a placement executive in Chicago.

"Paradoxical as it might sound, it's the failure to spend money which often means the difference between landing a job and missing out on an opportunity," says Lon D. Barton, president of Cadillac Associates, Inc. Advised Barton:

Use the mail and phones freely. Canvass the opportunities of every firm in your field. Make certain your appearance is correct. If you plan to interview, have it done professionally. And use taxi cabs to make certain you're on time for appointments.

A good photograph of yourself is important, too, Barton added. He pointed out that it is often the first advance impression a prospective employer has of you.

Shrimp Relieve Fish Of Parasites

LA JOLLA, Calif. — Nature's battle for survival is halted daily here to permit tiny shrimp to enter the mouths and gill cavities of large fish to devour parasites.

Conrad Limbaugh, a marine specialist at the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, said the shrimp are in no danger when this parasite "house-cleaning" takes place.

He called the strange phenomenon a "sort of nature's trick." The oral parasite cleaning is undertaken by smaller fish as well as shrimp, Limbaugh added.

Memorial Was Dedicated To Ernie Pyle

COLUMBUS, Ohio — An Ernie Pyle Memorial Library was dedicated at Ohio State University here Friday to the famous Scripps-Howard war correspondent killed in the closing days of World War II.

A $4,000 grant from the Scripps-Howard Memorial Fund made the library possible. Another Scripps-Howard foreign correspondent, Jim Lucas, was to be the principal speaker at a noon lunch arranged by George Kienzie, director of the Ohio State University school of journalism.

Lucas' topic was the Orient. Friday night he addressed the annual "Rib-n'-roast" dinner sponsored by the university journalism students.

Special guests at the dedication included university president Novice C. Fawcett; Columbus Citizen Editor Don E. Weaver; Citizen Managing Editor Jack Keller; City Editor Pat Phelan; Haskell Short, manager of the United Press Columbus bureau; and representatives of other Scripps-Howard and other Ohio newspapers.

now being done and foreign works of more varied outlook and style are now being published in the Soviet Union.

However, in their recent reaction to Fast, Russian critics have flung all caution and tolerance to the winds. Remaining true to Soviet Communist tradition, they pulled out their harshest, most vituperous adjectives to condemn a man whom they regard as a traitor to the cause.

If Fast had publicly abandoned the Communist Party in Stalinist times, his books probably would have been immediately removed from every Soviet bookstore and library. As the situation stands now, his popularity will simply be allowed to decline gradually into the oblivion that comes to most writers whose works cease to be published.

A New Approach
During the later years of Stalin's rule, a contemporary foreign writer practically had to be a Communist Party member or an obvious sympathizer to qualify for publication in the Soviet Union.

Since Stalin's death, Soviet literary doctrine has moved toward a more liberal tolerant position. It has admitted that a foreign writer's political convictions should not be confused with his creative achievements.

Last year the Soviet Union's prominent critic and author, Ilya Ehrenburg, following this new line, made an eloquent plea that western writers be judged on their artistic merits rather than on whether they actively supported Soviet Russia's every policy move.

To a certain extent this is

U.S. Has Many Companies Which Made Automobiles

SAN FRANCISCO — More than 1,500 recognized motor vehicle companies have produced some 2,500 makes of cars in the United States since the day of the first horseless carriage.

And, says the California Automobile Assn., some of the cars they created were real wonders.

There was the Subcess, which had steel tires, and a two-horsepower motor that went 18 miles to a gallon. It sold for $250.

The Cocacento had eight wheels, one in the middle of each side, on in the front and one in the rear. It could turn on a dime and tip over just as easily.

The automakers also gave their products tricky names. There was the Dan Patch, Bugmobile, Seven Little Buffaloes, Peter Pan, Zip, Steel Swallow, O-We-Go, Klink and Klock.

Not to mention the Beyster Bi-Auto and the Auto-Loco-Stream.

Oil Industry May Benefit From Find

BERKELEY, Calif. — By spinning a test tube of crude oil at high speed for 12 days, a scientist has found minute particles of material that are 150 billionths of an inch in diameter.

The scientist, Dr. Paul A. Witherspoon of the University of California, said the tiny particles help explain the fundamental nature of oil and may open up exploitation large oil deposits now untapped.

The particles are known as asphaltines, normally found in phant and tar. It is quite possible these particles play a role in holding oil to the surface of sand and rocks.

Less than half the oil in the ground is being recovered because so much sticks to the sand it is found in, he explained. If further studies give chemists some control over the asphaltines, they may find a way to extract the surplus oil.

De Gaulle

The negotiations between De Gaulle and the Pflimlin government overshadowed opening debate in the National Assembly on the government's constitutional reform bill.

The bill, originally designed to block De Gaulle's bid for power, would give the government sweeping executive powers. Pflimlin has staked the life of his government on its passage.

As the assembly began its debate, the deputies crushed 412 to 149 a Communist bid to block the reform plan which would make the government almost impossible to overthrow.

But De Gaulle's latest intervention in the French crisis far overshadowed interest in the Assembly debate.

The former Free French leader drove suddenly from his retreat at Colombey-Les-Deux Eglises to Paris for a meeting over which the highest possible official black-out was drawn.

The stream of Paris traffic quickly swallowed up his black Citroen when he reached the southeastern districts.

He remained in Paris until early this morning and then returned to Colombey.

It still was unknown just what the basis of any compromise between De Gaulle and Pflimlin might be.

Reliable but unofficial sources said when De Gaulle first established contact with the government through intermediaries this week he offered two alternative ways of intervening in the crisis.

Publication of a new statement in which he would make clear just how he stands now, eight days after his Paris news conference.

A direct meeting with Pflimlin or a representative of the premier.

In any event, there was a growing feeling in the Chamber of Deputies that De Gaulle must be recalled soon if France is to avoid either a military government or a Communist-controlled "popular front."

As the Pflimlin government began falling apart and the Chamber of Deputies returned to the bickering which has snarled French politics for 13 years, the Communists scheduled strikes.

Fewer Driving Licenses Are Revoked In Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. — Nebraska's point system whereby traffic violators can lose their driving licenses for too many infractions of the law is apparently making drivers more careful.

An accumulation of 12 points in any two-year period results in license revocation for adults. The state has now reduced the number of allowable points for teenagers to eight.

Statistics for March showed 47 Nebraskans lost their right to drive, as compared with 76 license revocations in March of 1957.

"DIO BISHOP COULDN'T resist the knock on the door of my private office with her powerful, diamond-encrusted fingers, and came barging in, her eyes glittering with rage."

"Brand, my secretary, and I had been discussing the unsolved kidnapping case, now months old. There was a reward of one hundred grand for the person who could crack that case. I took one look at Bertha and said, 'That's all, Elsie.'"

Bertha stood there, hands on her hips, until Elsie Brand had left the office. Then she said, "Donald, I can't take it." "Can't take what?"

"A sniveling, crying, repentant man. 'Why tell me about it?' 'There's one in my office.' 'You don't like him?' 'No.' 'Throw him out.' 'I can't.' 'Why?' 'He has money.' 'What does he want?' 'Wants to hire a good detective of course.' 'And what do you want me to do?'"

"Donald," Bertha said, in her best wheedling tone, "I want you to talk with him. You get along with people. You seem to find something interesting in everybody. Bertha can't do it. Bertha likes them or she doesn't like them, and if she doesn't like them, she hates the ground they walk on."

"Has he got money?" "I told him we'd want a five-hundred-dollar retainer before we'd even touch it. I thought that would scare him out. If it had, I'd have been sorry all day, but—"

"What did he do?" "Pulled out a folder and counted out five hundred-dollar bills. The stuff is there on my desk." "No check?"

"No check. He didn't want the transaction to show on his books. I pushed back my chair. 'Lead me to him.'"

Bertha's face wreathed in smiles. "I knew I could count on you, Donald. You're so blankly understanding."

Bertha marched out through Elsie Brand's office, through the reception room, and into her own office.

The man who was sitting in the client's chair by the corner of the desk jumped up nervously as I came in.

"Mr. Fisher," Bertha said, "this is Donald Lam, my partner. I thought it might be a good idea if we had a man's viewpoint on this case."

Fisher had rusty, red hair, lighter red eyebrows, pale blue eyes, and looked as though he was going to burst out crying.

He shook hands with me and said, "Mr. Lam, it's a pleasure."

He didn't look as if he'd ever had any pleasure in his life. I glanced at the five hundred-dollar bills which were spread out on Bertha's blotter.

Bertha lowered her frame into the creaking swivel chair and glanced from one of the other of us with an expression which said plainly she was washing her hands of the whole business. She grasped the money, opened her desk drawer, put the money away and slammed the drawer shut.

"His name's Barclay Fisher," Bertha said parenthetically. "He's a real estate speculator. He's married, has an eighteen-month-old kid. He went to San Francisco two weeks ago on a convention. Now then, Fisher, you take it from there."

"It's hard to explain what I did," Fisher said, cracking the knuckles of his left hand with the fingers of his right.

"Don't crack your knuckles," Bertha snapped. "I'll make 'em get big."

"I do it all the time," he said. "Quit it then," Bertha yapped at him.

"What did you do in San Francisco?" I asked.

"I . . . I became intoxicated."

"And then what?"

"That helps," I told him.

"I . . . I spent the night apparently in a room other than my own."

"Whose was it?"

"The young lady apparently was named Lois Marlow."

"Where did you meet her?"

"She was one of a party of girls who were living up the convention."

"What sort of convention?"

"Boats. Yachts."
